

Reflect your identity with Hannah Warner...

Finding jewellery to suit you is a very personal thing, not only does it need to complement your taste and personality, but for many a piece of jewellery can hold much significance and so to reflect this, jewellery with a unique design can be exactly what you're looking for. Therefore, Insight would like to recommend a jewellery designer whose very intention is to produce jewellery that provides the wearer with years of lasting pleasure, as well as a one-off piece inspired by elements within our surroundings...

Designer and jeweller, Hannah Warner, designs and produces inspirational pieces that apply her love of natural formations, whilst also incorporating elements of different cultures; producing pieces that create unique texture and appearance, whilst radiating beauty through each individual design.

A graduate of the Gemological Institute of America, based in New York, after studying Gemology and Diamond Grading, as well as completing studies at the Wimbledon School of Art and the London Metropolitan, achieving a BA Honours in jewellery, Hannah Warner is extremely experienced in her field. This is clear to see throughout her designs, which are hugely influenced by her surroundings; from nature to the human body and even though experiencing certain elements present in different cultures.

Creating a strong identity through her various pieces which include the unusual, yet distinctive skull and bones designs, along with coral and wood designs, Hannah continues to develop her ideas and capture them within beautiful necklaces, rings and bracelets. All pieces are bespoke, only made to order and each client is able to incorporate their own preferred style with a choice of metals including silver and gold, as well as the option of incorporating various precious stones.

"I offer an adaptable and varied bespoke range that aims to intrigue and really stand alone from anything that people may have seen before. My designs are about capturing an essence of inspiration and I continue to do this not only through my own jewellery, but by organising collaborations with other artists. Plus, my work is also becoming more accessible not only through my website but also through selected boutiques from New York to London stocking my work." comments Hannah.

To find out more about commissioning a piece to suit you, Hannah can be contacted via email jewellery@hannahwarner.com or why not check out her range at www.hannahwarner.com

